Annual Report
2022–2023

Fun news! After 30 years as the Latika Roy Memorial Foundation, we've changed our name, logo and tagline. We're now Latika – short, sweet, uncluttered, revealing a perfect meaning we'd never quite appreciated before: Latika is a version of Lata-बेल. And as all बेल need support to grow and flower, we think it's just right for what we do for our kids.

embrace your difference

A Word From Jo

You must be poor
to know the luxury of giving.

George Eliot

This year, for the first time in our history, we participated in the Joy of Giving challenge to raise money for our building. Organized by Give India and open to any NGO in the country, it turned out to be one of the most exhilarating and uplifting experiences we have ever had as a team. Each day of the month-long challenge brought new excitement: one day there were matching grants – if we raised Rs 5,00,000, we'd get a Rs 60,000 prize. Another day, if we made it to the top 10 earners by midnight, we'd get another prize. First time donors got special recognition as did repeat givers – they thought of every possible way to keep the energy high.

Our best day, by far, was when the prize was for most unique donors. Up till then, we'd been making steady progress toward our goal of Rs 50,00,000 (~60,000 USD). Donors from around the world had responded with incredible generosity to our videos, WhatsApp messages, personal letters and appeals. Old staff turned up along with relatives, board members, friends, former volunteers – the donations kept pouring in. We were overwhelmed by the love and support flowing our way.

But the Unique Donor Day still stands out. That morning, Sumita Nanda, our COO, put a simple and sweet message in our staff WhatsApp group, asking everyone to donate whatever they could: no amount too small. By around 10.30, interesting small amounts began to trickle in: Rs 150, 125, 300... the donors included our gatekeeper, helping staff, custodians and drivers – people who live on tight budgets and spend every rupee carefully. Without smart phones or computers, most needed someone to help them do the online transaction.

All day long, those small amounts kept coming. The trickle became a flood and by the end of the day nearly 100 unique donors had donated Rs 5,00,000. (We won the prize, too!) And it didn't end there. That evening, buoyed by their success, staff members began – on their own – to reach out to the families whose kids come here. Parents began to donate. They told their friends and relatives. By the end of the month-long challenge, we were #16 of 572 NGOs in money raised and in the top 10 for number of unique donors.

Construction of our state-of-the-art, universally designed campus is well underway, and we expect to move into our new home by 2025. While we're overjoyed at the prospect of our beautiful dream coming true, the real joy comes from witnessing the mighty efforts of thousands of individuals working together to make it happen, each one giving what they can, each one believing in the transformative power of a world where every single person belongs.

This year's annual report is about the great gifts we all have to give: time, skill, resources, creativity – and ultimately, love. These are gifts that only deepen and grow: the more we give, the more manifold our gifts become. It's one of the many marvelous mysteries we have discovered working at Latika and we love sharing it with you.

All the very best for a year full of giving and receiving.

Our Vision

A better world for children with disabilities.

Our Mission

To provide specialized, localized services to disabled children and their families and help others do the same.

What We Do

We make a living by what we get. We make a life by what we give.
Winston Churchill

Latika works with children and young adults with developmental and other disabilities, and their families, providing assessments, early intervention, special education, a range of therapies, vocational training, inclusion, advocacy and raising awareness in the community.

Children and Adults Enrolled

IDG Goals for Children Achieved

Our interdisciplinary team of specialists at Latika Jaanch (formerly Gubbara) conducts assessments for children from birth to age six, working with their families to arrive at a holistic understanding of the child's strengths and challenges. Easy-to-follow intervention programmes are developed in consultation with families, and hands-on training provided so that parents can follow up on their child's therapy and learning goals at home.

Children Screened

Children Assessed

We conduct community follow-ups for families in neighboring blocks and districts who cannot avail our intervention services on-site on a regular cycle of one to three months.

Community Follow-up

We also conduct a monthly follow-up program for waitlisted families.

Gubbara Follow-up

Caregivers Trained

At Latika Nanhe (formerly the Early Intervention Center), we cater to young children vulnerable to disabilities or who have been identified with disabilities. We build on the strengths of the child and family, are responsive to their personal and cultural needs and priorities, and maximize their opportunities to participate in the family, school, and community.

Shivansh was on a liquid diet when he joined us last July. He couldn't chew solids, not even a small bite. After three months of oro-motor exercises to strengthen his rotatory chewing and pocket feeding, Shivansh could eat an entire paratha, sometimes even two. Switching to solids has boosted his physical growth and been convenient for the whole family because he's no longer on a separate diet.

Shivansh's family finds deep meaning in raising a disabled child. "He's with us because we have what it takes to look after him," says his father Anand. Caregiving roles are distributed so that no one feels burdened. The family welcomes suggestions on how to do the best for their boy. Anand recently spoke to us about his trip to the Himalayas, and how it's made him more mindful of his eating habits. He's inculcated exercise and yoga into his daily routine, and aims for a healthy, conscious lifestyle for his family.

At Latika School (formerly Karuna Vihar and the Center for Child Development), we provide activity-based holistic learning experiences that enhance social skills, behavior and communication. Regular experiential visits provide much-needed exposure to the community, encourage children to try new things, hone their communication skills, and reinforce positive behaviour.

Akansha, 7, had never been to school or played with children her age until she joined us in July 2022. She depended entirely on Mama to get through the day. Mom, on the other hand, was primarily concerned that Akansha had a semi-liquid diet that had left her very weak. We devised several hands-on training sessions on oro-motor exercises for Akansha.

A few weeks later, we asked Mom to begin sending roti-sabji for Akansha's lunch. A few days later, she came in confused. "Didi, Akansha's tiffin box comes home empty these days. Are any of the staff having it or are you giving it to any other child? I know Akansha can't be eating it all," she inquired.

Startled, we had her observe her child from behind a curtain during tiffin time. Her eyes welled up with tears of joy when she saw Akansha eating all of her snack. She now eats with minimal help both at school and at home. "We sometimes forget that it's important to share information and success with a parent. It's so important to do that so that they can see their child learning," concludes Manju Sharma, Project Head.

As a family-centered organization, we offer a range of parent services to support family well being, and help them strengthen parenting, develop practical skills to support their children's development, learn problem-solving approaches, and become aware of their children's rights and entitlements so that parents can be effective advocates for them.

Our support group sessions for mothers, fathers and siblings are conducted at times that work best for our parents and involve outings, creative activities and games. There’s been a significant increase in the involvement of fathers, and more siblings have approached us for individual counselling sessions than before.

The support group has helped reduce my stress and anxiety. I’ve opened up to people and am candid about my feelings. I no longer feel isolated, lonely and judged for my circumstances. It’s helped me become more confident in my ability to cope with adverse situations.

True inclusion requires that young disabled adults be taught skills to prepare for and find jobs, apply their learning and perform well. Latika Training (formerly the Center for Vocational Training) helps young adults build confidence in themselves and hope in the future.

In the face of particularly high demand for vocational training services last year, we accommodated 75 instead of the usual 62 trainees. Ninety per cent of our trainees were vaccinated against Covid-19 at our in-house vaccination camp. Thirty-five participated in an Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav health screening program organized by Special Olympics Bharat.

Ishan joined us as a vocational trainee in 2018. His profound hearing loss had no bearing on his extraordinary observation skills, attention span, and varied interests – Ishan loves cooking, fixing things, bodybuilding, planning and organizing. “As a team, we saw that we could involve Ishan in anything and he’d do a great job,” says Prem Kumar Singh, Project Head.

Despite his many talents, Ishan often struggled to communicate, especially at the workplace. He found himself jumping to conclusions about people’s perceptions of him, which became a source of stress. We counselled his parents on getting him a hearing test and hearing aids, and guided them on how to finance the aids.

Ishan’s first internship was at a salon where he learned to conduct himself around clients and colleagues. When he said he’d like to try something different, we worked with him to explore other areas of interest, eventually hitting upon the perfect fit – an opportunity at the Red Fox restaurant of the Lemon Tree hotel chain. Here, Ishan puts to use the skills he’s acquired in cooking, chopping, cleaning and hospitality to earn a monthly salary of Rs 10,000 with EPF benefits. His supervisors say that his commitment to doing the job well makes him a breeze to work with.

At Latika Vihar, our inclusive play center, children of all ages, abilities and socio-economic backgrounds come together every evening for free play as well as a range of fun activities. We celebrate the stunning diversity of our country through its festivals as well as other occasions – Independence Day with the cadets at Vishal Sthal, a flute recital by Pt. Hariprasad Chaurasia, painting style workshops at Virasat Mela, a musical performance by Chords by Archit, storytelling by Anubha Daspal and frequent bookstore visits.

Latika Adda (formerly The Club) is India's first and only leisure space of its kind exclusively for disabled adults. There's a café staffed by our vocational trainees who prepare and serve snacks. We also have board games, music, movies and fun events for the members.

Our Inclusion team works closely with families and children who can be prepared to eventually transition to mainstream schools. It also trains and sensitizes mainstream school management and teachers, students, even their parents, to foster an environment where every child, regardless of their abilities, can thrive. Our specially designed Knowing Me Better booklets record the strengths and challenges of every child we mainstream so that everyone working with them is aware of their preferred style of learning, likes, dislikes and difficulties.

Rishi* joined us at age four. He learned to communicate and acquired a level of academic attainment that made mainstream education seem like a possibility for the first time. In 2020, at age six, we facilitated his admission into Class 1 at Cognivance School*. Rishi attended school in the morning and came to Latika for remedial lessons every afternoon for the next three months. Then the pandemic struck, and schooling went virtual for almost two years. When life returned to normal, we organized a Holi Milan for the parents of the children who'd been mainstreamed. A relative attended on behalf of Rishi's parents, because, he said, the child's parents had all but given up on him.

The school authorities informed us that Rishi's classmates' parents had complained that he hit their children. We met the principal and teachers and presented a customized curriculum they could use to help Rishi cope academically. Observing him in the classroom, we saw that he was made to sit at the teacher's table instead of with the other students. He had no interaction with the other kids and no friends. His classmates were quick to pick on him. The shadow teacher lacked the expertise and experience to provide the support he needed. Rishi was simply acting out from his inability to understand what was required of him.

We recommended that Rishi sit with the other children, be shown what to do and be provided visual support. We coached his teacher on encouraging him to await his turn, urging her to ignore any attention-seeking behavior and reward good behavior. We worked closely with his mother, advising her on the importance of structure and routine (Rishi had neither), using a visual timetable we prepared for him, minimizing screen time (his was unlimited), playing with fun and educational toys, focusing on encouraging good behavior rather than punishing inappropriate behavior, and giving him opportunities to contribute at home by helping with the chores.

Rishi was moved back a year to KG, where he's coping much better academically and thrilled that there are lots of games. His mother is elated to see her child read two-word sentences and progress to three-word ones. He's thriving at school, and cooperative at home. We continue to monitor Rishi's progress and advise his teachers. Targeted workshops are planned for the teachers as well as the students, whose acceptance and friendship will play a pivotal role in motivating Rishi to continue going to school as studies become more challenging.

Children admitted into mainstream school often continue to avail remedial education services with our special educators and therapists after school.

Children in Remedial Education

“Moy Moy , our inspiration, taught us to work with dil, will and skill,” says her mother, our Founder, Jo. “Dil means we work from the heart, will means we work with conviction, and skill means we know what we’re doing.” We conduct regular staff training at all levels to stay abreast of the latest research, approaches and developments to ensure our children and families receive services that work.

Staff Training

Our awareness and advocacy efforts for the rights of disabled children includes research, legal aid, policy guidance to government institutions, and talks and workshops for various civic groups.

Many families of young, disabled adults are unaware that the National Trust Act, 1999, allows disabled individuals above the age of 18 to have a legal guardian to safeguard themselves, their interests, finances and other assets. Among those who do know, many hesitate to navigate the process, because of the paperwork and potential bureaucratic red tape involved.

Our Awareness Team conducts quarterly workshops to orient parents to the legal guardianship process, help them gather the documents, fill in and upload the online application, and engage with the district authorities with whom we've come to share a good rapport over the decade since we began conducting these workshops.

Harishchandra Gairola was one of 15 individuals who acquired legal guardianship for his disabled son last year. Like most parents with disabled offspring, Gairolaji and his wife worried about the fate of their child after their demise. Their older daughter and her husband agreed to become Jayprakash's legal guardians. They coordinated with our Awareness Team to put the documents together, fill in and upload the online form, and meet officials at the District Magistrate's office. "We expect the certificate to reach us in a month. It's such a relief. All parents with disabled adult children should get legal guardianship," Gairolaji says.

Awareness Sessions

We welcome volunteers and interns to contribute and hone their skills, and take the lessons they've learnt back to the wider community as another step towards building a better world for disabled children.

Making Disability a National Priority

Giving does not only precede receiving; it is the reason for it. It is in giving that we receive.

Israelmore Ayivor

Disabled people form the world's largest minority and yet India has only a handful of disability organisations with a global vision and the passion to achieve it. We're one of them. Our prize-winning work is evidence-based and is executed with energy, love and pride. We live and breathe inclusion and acceptance.

Our work needs a national platform and a national reach. And the country needs to be inspired by the masterpiece of unity and conviction that is possible when love and skill come together. We're delighted to share that construction of our state-of-the-art campus began on March 17. Our new premises will be purpose-built to universal design and accessibility standards with specialized equipment, accessible playgrounds, customized lighting, wide doorways and ramps. It will demonstrate to India both the scale of the problem and the reality of the solution.

The campus, consisting of approximately 50,000 square feet of built-up space on a large plot, will contain large, airy activity rooms, therapy units, counselling rooms, library, dance and music studio, physiotherapy unit, sensory integration, a family resource center, inclusive playground, training halls, meeting rooms and a spacious auditorium. All floors will be fully accessible by ramp and lifts and the campus will be an earthquake safe, energy efficient, green construction. We have the ownership records of land and our plans have been approved by the Municipal Authorities. Construction is expected to be completed within 18–24 months.

It will cost us Rs 24 crore to bring this dream to life. We have the pro-bono support and donation of Rs 2 crore from Cushman & Wakefield (C&W), the world renowned project management company. Pradeep Sachdeva and Associates, one of India's best regarded architectural firms have designed the facilities.

We've raised Rs 11 crore with upfront investments from C&W, Wipro, Tablespace, Max India Foundation and HT Parekh Foundation. Help us raise the rest – become a part of this visionary quest and help make 1000 dreams come true.
